CENTRE FOR ARTS AND CREATIVITY

Wîchoê Ahiya Indigenous Singer Songwriter Residency 2023

Program Information

Indigenous Arts | In Person

Inspired by Elder Buddy Wesley, Wîchoê Ahiya ("Wee-cho-ee-ay A-hee-ya") means "singing words" in Stoney Nakoda. This three-week residency allows participants to deepen their creative practice and expand their skill set through faculty led workshops, group gatherings, and one-on-one sessions with senior faculty. Take time to shape your vision for your next project.

Wîchoê Ahiya Indigenous Singer Songwriter Residency is designed to explore the entire process of song writing with different methodologies, expand on performance skills, and learn the intricacies of production.

During this residency, you will have freedom to structure your time around the needs of your project and work in an audio production studio to record one song for a demo.

Application deadline: September 6, 2023

Program Dates: November 20 - December 8, 2023
